Don't expect nothing but overtly friendliness from this record, titled "thanks, but no thanks" by Zurich, Switzerland based screamo trios The Rabbit Theory, because that's not what it is about. it's about putting things like the omnipresent maximising of profits, over-the-top positivism, and the latest in surveillance craze back on the map. musically wrapped in both instrumental tracks and songs with engaged shouting these and more problems are addressed in a fitting way: with complex structures, surprising breaks and outbursts of aggression.

"thanks, but no thanks" was mixed by Jeremy Romagna (Life At These Speeds, All Girl Summer Fun Band) in Portland, Oregon's own Type Foundry Studios. Chris Flanagan (Life At These Speeds) put hands on the mastering process to get the je ne sais quoi music like this needs.

"thanks, but no thanks" is being released handnumbered on 200 yellow LPs und 200CDs with handscreened covers.

Since The Rabbit Theory started out in late 2004, they recorded Songs for compilations, released an EP and a Split 7" with Zurich-based screamo band Dying In Motion and played concerts in cities like Zurich, Lucerne, St-Gallen, Antwerp, Brussels and Munich. Additionally, they wrote and recorded a score for the animation short "Aufzeichnungen" by Zurich-based artist Christian Eberhard.
